Beekeeping Tours

BERUDA's founder is Cameroon's first expert on beekeeping and honey production. Trained in America and the United Kingdom, he has personally trained over 500 rural citizens in bee farming and honey production to help create economically and environmentally sustainable agriculture for local people.

Honeybees are useful domestic insects that are the natural pollinators of many important crops. Consequently, bee farming provides this nutritious food for human consumption and also provides wax and other products for multiple uses.

Apart from wax, honeybees provide medicinal propolis and pollen. BERUDA has identified the production of natural medicines as an income generating activity, and trains widows in medicine production for sale and family health purposes.

Beekeeping requires little capital for the beginner, thus it is an excellent rural development tool.

Possible Tour Options

- Plant trees with local farmers
- Learn about traditional African bees & beekeeping at a local apiary
- Home-stay with a local beekeeping family
- Build hives to donate to a local group
- ...and much more

Check out our website and choose from over 10 options. We will put together an exciting itinerary for your time with us.

This option is especially popular with beekeeping groups.
